Attached is a translation of the text of Prime Minister General Miklos's speech delivered at 2300 hours on 26 February.

1. This speech was delivered as a consequence of the mass demonstration which was organized by the PSD on the afternoon of 24 February and which resulted in some gunfire and casualties.

Source: For account of the demonstration, see OR-874 of 25 February 1945.

2. According to several reliable witnesses, who heard the speech on the radio, the transcript as here presented underwent certain revisions, the most significant of which is the omission of the adjective "Hungarian", which was applied to Iose in the original speech.

3. According to a representative of one of the Bucharest left-wing papers, orders had been received from the censorship not to print the Prime Minister's speech. This source added that the press was not going to print the speech in any event.

Source: For account of the worker's censorship of the Romanian press, see OR-874 of 21 February 1945.

4. The criticism of the PSD as people "without country and without God" (Psiu sunt cu romani - a comment play on the initials PSD originally with the National Peasant) is considered by persons both on the left and the right as a lack of taste on the part of the Prime Minister.
